

YOU NEED

The 10 colour theme decks (18 cards each) · about 30 chips — coins, beans or buttons · this sheet.

SETUP

1. Shuffle each colour deck. Everyone takes 8 chips; the rest is the pot.
2. Choose a direction together: German → English (easier) or English → German (harder).
Decks always sit with the question side up.

EACH ROUND

1 · The Market. Draw 3 colour decks at random and place them in the middle. Going once around (start left of the last winner; youngest starts the game), each player bids chips or passes. Highest bidder pays the pot, chooses which of the 3 themes is played, and becomes the first Customer.

2 · The Stall — 10 cards. The player left of the Customer is the Vendor: they draw the top card and read it aloud. The Customer has 5 seconds to say the translation.

- Correct → the Customer keeps the card (1 point).
- Wrong or too slow → anyone else may shout the answer. First correct shout steals the card.
- Nobody gets it → the Vendor reveals the answer; the card goes face-up into the Bank.

The Customer role moves clockwise after every card. After 10 cards the round ends.

THE BANK — MISSED WORDS COME BACK TO MARKET

Cards nobody could translate wait face-up in the Bank. They are not lost — they are opportunities.

Bank bid: before any Market phase, a player holding 3+ won cards of one colour may put a Bank card of that colour up for auction. Everyone may bid chips; the triggering player wins ties. The winner must still translate it correctly — succeed and keep it, fail and it drops back into the Bank.

Lucky reds: red (B1) cards you have won are wild — each may stand in for any colour when triggering a Bank bid. Hard words are the luck of the market.

FAIR-PLAY RULES — MIXED LEVELS AT ONE TABLE

Article rule: confident speakers only score a noun if they also give der / die / das correctly.

Swap rule: beginners and kids may trade in one red (B1) card per round for a fresh card.

Agree before the game who plays under which rule. Grandma decides disputes.

END OF THE GAME

After 4 market rounds: score 1 point per card won + 1 point per 2 chips you still hold.

Most points wins the market. Tie? One sudden-death card — first correct shout takes everything.

BLITZMARKT — the 10-minute version

No chips, no auction. Pick any deck, flip cards one by one: first correct shout keeps the card.

This is the game the whole thing was built around — start here on family night.
